Dear editor and reviewers,

We send a version of our manuscript addressing the issues pointed by the first and second reviewers. We believe that the comments and suggestions improved the manuscript considerably. We submit this new version for consideration for publication.

We made careful grammar and spelling review. We excluded intersection oppression discussions throughout the paper since we don't analyze extensively class and race issues. We now focus only on gender.

As pointed by the second reviewer, we now verified that the whole text mentions the same goals. We also merged the introduction and background into one single section.

We included all the references suggested by the second reviewer.

We emphasized our methodological instruments, making lear that the theatre is not only a methodological choice. Theatre structures our theoretical fundaments.

As pointed out by the first reviewer, we separated the creation of the scenes from the results. We also inserted a table with the sketches and the discussions that each play brings to light.

We added pictures from the plays, as suggested by both reviewers.

Kind regards,

Susanne Maciel
